

Palliative Care Postdoctoral Fellowship For Nurse Scientists

HIGHLIGHTS:

- Exposure to health policy, regulatory, and financial issues relevant to advanced illness, aging, or frailty
- Rigorous methodological training and experience with design and implementation of health services research studies
- Professional and career development, networking and grant writing
- Novel academic/practice partnership in the heart of Silicon Valley.

STIPEND INCLUDES:

- Full-Time Salary
- Housing & Relocation
- Research Stipend

PROGRAM LEADERSHIP:

- Karl Lorenz, MD
- David Pickham, PhD, RN
- Annette S. Nasr RN, PhD

APPLICATION DEADLINE:

- Accepted on a rolling basis
- Deadline for next program Fall 2019:
- Submit by June 1st 2019

Information

Summary: Building on the ethos of creative innovation that best defines Silicon Valley and leveraging the best of Stanford's leading Schools of Medicine, Business, Engineering, and Education, join our world-class Palliative Care Team for a unique one- to three-year postdoctoral training program focused on nursing science within palliative care. Our program uniquely integrates Stanford Health Care & Stanford Children's Health with Stanford University to provide a rich applied research setting.

Description: Nurse Postdoctoral Fellows will participate in the academic and research activities of the new interdisciplinary Stanford Palliative Care Center of Excellence, as well as collaborate with the Palliative Care and Geriatric clinical services teams in the care delivery system. Stanford's program uniquely emphasizes implementation science, as well as potential applications of technology. The goals of the fellowship are for fellows to (a) establish their own program of research in palliative care; (b) learn how to promote integration of significant research findings into clinical practice; (c) develop skills to secure funding through grants; (d) foster dissemination of research through presentations and publications; and an additional (e) build on the fellowship experience to achieve a sustainable career pathway as a leader in nursing scholarship and practice.

Qualifications: Candidates will be selected based on the following criteria: Completion of a research-focused doctorate prior to fellowship commencement; a track record of contributing to peer-reviewed publications; prior clinical and/or research expertise with palliative care; ability to articulate in a written personal statement the applicant's goals and objectives within the specific areas of interest, building on prior education and/or clinical experiences; an additional statement outlining the relevant resources at Stanford University that will contribute to and advance Fellowship objectives. Applicants must be eligible for Registration with the California Board of Registered Nursing.

---

Applications are being received on a rolling basis.

Please contact Research@stanfordhealthcare.org to receive further application details or visit <http://orpcs.org/research/postdoctoralfellowship>.